SpawGlass and ACC celebrate topping out of Round Rock Campus

Austin, Texas – SpawGlass and Austin Community College District are celebrating the topping out of the district's new campus in Round Rock. The construction milestone will be celebrated Wednesday, August 5 with lunch for all involved with the project.

The first phase of the new ACC Round Rock campus includes five buildings totaling 276,000 square feet. The project is on time and on budget. To ensure the campus is ready for students by Fall 2010, crews have been working six days a week through record-breaking heat. Work is progressing on all five buildings simultaneously. Graeber, Simmons & Cowan is the architect for the project.

On Wednesday, Patrick Williams, SpawGlass president, Austin Region, and ACC President/CEO Dr. Stephen B. Kinslow will thank workers for their efforts before lunch is served to more than 300 construction team members and others associated with the project. A construction update also will be provided and tours of the construction site will be offered.

A "topping out" celebration marks the safe and successful completion of the main structure's framework. A tree is traditionally placed atop the structure as a symbol of the accomplishment.

The event will take place from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., Wednesday, August 5, at the ACC Round Rock Campus construction site, off University Boulevard at County Road 112 in Round Rock. Follow signs to parking.
